Devotional Study 4

Lesson 111: Revelation 21:4, John 1:12

Heaven is not simply the absence of pain—it is the complete restoration of all things. No more tears, no more death, no more broken bodies or wounded hearts. Relationships are healed, sorrow is erased, and God Himself wipes away every tear. This future is not earned by goodness but secured by grace through faith in Jesus Christ. Those who believe in Him are named children of God, written in the Lamb's book of life. Until that day comes, we live with hope—knowing that our present suffering is temporary and that God's promises are unshakable. Let your mind contemplate life in heaven and how wonderful it will be to live a life free of the pain we experience here on earth

Devotional Study 1

Lesson 111: Colossians 1:16-17, Revelation 1:7-8

From the very beginning, God has been intentional. Creation was not random, redemption was not an afterthought, and restoration is not uncertain. Scripture tells us that Jesus was present at creation, holds all things together, and is central to God's plan to rescue a broken world. Sin fractured what God declared good, and we live daily with the effects—pain, loss, conflict, and decay. Yet Scripture reminds us that history is moving toward restoration, not ruin. God, who authored the beginning, also guarantees the ending. The same God who planned salvation through Christ promises to return and finish His work, bringing creation back to wholeness.

Devotional Study 2

Lesson 111: Revelation 21:5, Hebrews 10:23

We live in a world that groans under the weight of brokenness. Nature resists us, bodies fail us, relationships fracture, and hearts grow weary. Pain and hardship can make it easy to wonder whether God is distant or silent. But Scripture tells us something powerful—God sees the brokenness, and He has promised renewal. When God declares, "I am making everything new," He does not speak in hope or possibility, but in certainty. Unlike human promises that fail due to weakness or limitation, God's promises are rooted in His character. What He says, He will do.

Prayer

Faithful God, You see every broken place in this world and in my heart. Help me to trust Your promises even when circumstances feel overwhelming. Strengthen my faith to rest in Your truth and not in what I see. Thank You for being a God who never breaks His word. Amen.

Devotional Study 3

Lesson 111: Revelation 21:3, Revelation 22:5

The picture of the New Jerusalem is overwhelming in its beauty and meaning—not just because of its size or splendor, but because of who is there. There is no temple because God Himself is present. There is no need for sun or moon because His glory lights everything. What humanity once lost in Eden—direct fellowship with God—is fully restored. The city is not merely a destination; it is a relationship fulfilled. God does not simply prepare a place for His people—He dwells with them, removing every barrier sin once built.

Prayer

Lord, thank You for the promise of Your presence. Help me live today with eternity in view, remembering that my greatest hope is not a place, but You. Teach me to walk in Your light now as I wait for the day I will dwell with You forever. Amen.
